Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 06 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Windy with rain at times on Tuesday.

Today:
A wet start to the day as a band of rain, heavy at times, sweeps across the country. Rain gradually easing during the afternoon, with sunny spells and scattered showers to follow. Feeling warm in the sunshine, but rather windy. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Tonight:
Turning cloudy into the evening with outbreaks of rain, heavy in places and persisting throughout the night. Winds gradually easing during the early hours. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Wednesday:
Wednesday starting rather cloudy with scattered showers, possibly heavy. Showers easing later in the afternoon with long sunny spells to follow. Feeling warm in the east. Remaining dry overnight. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Sunny spells and showers on Thursday and Friday. Cloud thickening during Saturday with outbreaks of showery rain. Feeling warm in any sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.